The Patron Saint of Stellin-Garibaldi's
Sacree Descent.

A strange idea has just sprung up in the minds of the Palermitans, and we record it to illustrate the state of popular instruction and national enlightenment where such things are possible. Here in Palermo all the world worships St. Rosalis, the patron Saint of Sicily. St. Rosalis has a very splendid and very ancient temple of the western side of Monte Pellegrino—a temple in as great repute throughout all Sicily as that of Diana of the Ephesians was of old throughout all Asia Minor. St. Rosalis is believed to work miracles on miracles, but these miracles she will only work for the Sicilians, and her greatest miraculous feats are confined to Palermo and its immediate suburbs. For strangers and foreigners she does not care a straw, and they may wear their knees out in adoration, or exhaust heir breath in entreaty, without being one bit nearer the mark.

The Palermitans say that she saves Palermo from pestilence, and war, and famine; and that in the days of the bombardment she arrested in their course 500 bombs, which otherwise would have fallen in the city. St. Rosalia is supposed to be descended from one of the petry chieftains that formerly ruled in Sicily—one of the Counts of Sinibaldi. On the arrival of Garibaldi in Sicily, the Neapolitan officers, in derision, used to say that it was one of the old Sinibaldi who returned to claim his own. The effect produced was exactly the reverse of that intended. The story spread like wildfire among the lower classes of Palermo, who affirmed, and who now believe, that the Dictator belongs to the same family with St. Rosalis, and that the Saint hevself has laid on him the task of driving the Neapolitans from the island.

Appearance and Manner of Mes. Sen-

APPEARANCE AND MANNER OF MRS. SEN-ATOR DOUGLAS .- The Boston Journal's corcondent writes as follows of Mrs. Douglas at

Newport:

Mrs. Douglas was dressed in the Die Vernon style—a jaunty school straw hat, shaped like an inverted milk pan, with a small vail hanging on the edge, gave her a youthful and school-girl appearance—with a dark merino habit, half fitting and half loose, a cross between a riding habit and a loose morning gown—and her whole appearance was that of a young Miss who had thrown her books aside for August, and had taken a run with her mother to spend a month at Newport, rather than the heir expectant of the lady of the White House. All the way from Providence to Newport she entertained her friends with the incidents of her journey since she left Washington, some of which were comical enough. How at Concord men and women were found peaking through the blind, when she supposed herself all alone. How some ardent young men insisted on seeing Mr. Douglas s wife, and got hold of a fateld motherly lady by mistake, and made her such complimentary addresses. How she was told that if Mr. Douglas carried Rhode Island she must love clams, and how hard she tried to say they were good, and found them so detestable—and other matters. How she would run up to the upper story, and hear the addresses, and look ou the crowd that so detestable—and other matters. How she would run up to the upper story, and hear the addresses, and look on the crowd that her husband was addressing, and listen at the same time to speeches made about her-aelf, and not intended for her own sars—all related with infinite relish and good humor, and with almost childish give.

A New and Valuable Rifle.—A new and heavy style of weapon, called the "wall rifle," has just been completed at the armory in Springfield, Mass., and forwarded to the ord-nance department at Washington. It was proposed by the department some time since, approved by Secretary Floyd, and built under the direction of Erskins S. Allen, then master armorer and acting superintendent. It is breech-loading, with a barrel four feet long and two and three-eights inches in diameter at the breech, and with a stock nine-teen inches in length, and will carry a half pound ball. The barrel is of cast steel, and the lock-frame different from other breech-loading pieces. It is hung on a pivot, and when closed presents a smooth surface, all the machinery being inside. The weight of the entire gun is eighty-five pounds, and will be used only for wall service.

Deliberate Desertion of a Husband.—
The Providence (R. I.) Post says that Dr. Kassou, of Canton, Conn., who recently came in possession of a second wife, of some beauty and considerable spirit, was much surprised, last Thursday, on returning from a drive among his patients, to find the house empty, the wife gone, bag and baggage, and the most marvellous tales affoat among the village gossips. The latter have it that a swift, fine carriage drove up to the Doctor's, then away; then returning with two or three more; then followed the packing and lading of trunks; exit the lady; crack of whips; clouds of dust in the distance; cloud of mystery over the village and over the whole transaction.

An Incident of the Indian War.—A young soldier named Jennings joined Mayne's Horse, an irregular cavalry corps, raised for service in Central India, and was shot dead a short time since, while gallantly leading his men in an attack on a body of rebels from Bundelcund. His father and his sister—a protty girl, and engaged to be married—were mussacred at Delhi, at the commencement of the mutiny of May, 1857. It was in avenging their death young Jennings fell. He be-haved with great spirit, and cut down four men with his own hand. He was shot through the heart, and had his throat cut in two places.

Discovery of Gold in Tehuanterec.—The bark Golden Lead, at New York, from Minatitlan, Isthmus of Tehuanterec, on the 4th ult., brings intelligence that a gold-hunting expedition, which left that place during the month of May, had returned short of provisions, but with golden proof of having been successful in their search. They went to the head-waters of the Coatzacoalcos River, in Chinalaps, where they found aurifarous deposits of sufficient richness to repay working. The expedition returned to the mines on the 1st ult., with a good supply of provisions, determined to prosecute their search still further.

Surr About the Obstauorion of A View.
A suit has been brought by Gen. J. D. Ledyard, of Cazenovia, N. Y., against Henry Ten Eyck, for obstructing the plaintiff's view of Cazenovia Lake, by planting willow trees on the shore of the lake. Mr. Ten Eyck's residence is on the lake shore, and he has built out into the natural waters by filling in with earth and planting trees, which the plaintiff contends he has no right to do.

Proposition to Christian the Japanese.
A correspondent of the Christian Freeman (Universalist) thus writes to that paper: "If my orthodox brethren will send me $10,000 to pay the expenses of a trip to Japan, I will engage to introduce Christianity into that empire, or return the money at the end of three years, with compound in-

A SOLDIES'S COMPLINENT.—At the dinner-table the other day, in Pittsfield Mass., Gov. Banks and Gen. Woo! were both called up and made interesting and enlivening speeches. So moderate a wish ought to be gratified. It would not do for his Royal Highness to sleep all the time on maple bedsteads; consequently, we are not surprised to learn that this article of chamber-furniture will be pleasingly varied. INEFFICACY OF THE MORAL INSANITY QUES-rion IN SPAIN.—The "moral insanity" dodge loes not do well out of America. A Spaniard does not do well out of America. A Spaniard of excellent family and good income was recently before the Tribural of Correctional Police of Rochefort, charged with stealing a silver spoon and fork from the table of the Hotel du Bacha in that town. The crime was proved, but his advocate contended that he ought not to be condemned, inasmuch as he had committed the robbery under the influence of monomania, which be could not resist. In proof of this the learned gentleman stated that in Spain, for numerous robberies of the like kind, he had been condemned altogether to not fewer than thirty-two years' imprisonment but, in consideration of his mental infirmity, had been pardoned by the Crown. He stated, too, that though unable to abstain from atealing, the prisoner never sold the articles abstracted, but kept them for a time and then sent them back, carriage paid, to the owners. As a out kept them for a time and then sent them back, carriage paid, to the owners. As a further proof that the unfortunate man was not a their, but a monomaniae, the council mentioned that when he came into France he was charged by a friend to remit 11,000f. to a banker at Marseilles, and that he executed the mission with the strictest fidelity, but could not resist stealing a silver fork at a table d'hotel. Notwithstacding all his the tribunal d'hote! Notwithstanding all this, the tribuna held that the monomania was not sufficiently proved, and condemned the prisoner to five

A German Dune Declares Humboldt a Liar.—Humboldt's letters to Varchagen Von Ense are still making a stir in Germady, where many editions have been printed. Many of its statements are disputed; and it is related that the Grand Duke of Saxe Weimar has taken a very decided method of contradicting a story told about him. The story is this, as given by Humboldt to Varnhagen. "Once, after agentleman not belonging to the nobility, had left the company, he (the Grand Duke) expressed with great satisfaction the comfortable feeling. Now we are among ourselves. Another time, when it was noticed that there were thirteen at dinner-table he replied, consolingly, that there were two he replied, consolingly, that 'there were two commonersamong them, who did not count for any thing! This he told Humboldtin French, because, as he said, 'these two would not understand it."

understand it."

When the book arrived in Weimar the Grand Duke took a copy, wrote on the margin opposite the passage; "This is a lite-Karl August," and then deposited it in the town library.

AN INEXORABLE ENGLISH POLICEMAN.-It s hardly credible that so great firmness against such blandishments could be shown ent of a provincial paper narrates the follow-ing anecdote, and says it is true: It appears that Mrs. Herbert, the wife of the Minister of War, desired to attend the late review of the War, desired to attend the late review of the volunteers in Hyde Park, and a place on the royal stand was reserved for her. But she was stopped at the gate by a pollcoman, who demanded her ticket, she had none; she had been told by the Duke of Cambridge that no ticket would be required from her; she smiled on the man with the leather stock and the oil-cloth hat; she referred him to the Queen and to a large and influencial circle of friends; she called in foreign aid, and the Colonel of one of the regiments expostulated with policeman X; more than this, a General officer attempted to brow beat him. But it was all in vain. The distinct order was to admit no one to the park without a ticket. The no one to the park without a ticket. The order was obeyed, and the wife of the War Minister was forced to return homeward.

ARREST OF WARLIER PRIBETS IN ITALY.—
The Corriere Mercantile of Genoa states that for some time past arrests of priests for having prohibited weapons concealed about their persons have been very frequent. On the 13th ult., a priest name i Bartolioi was taken into custody at Cortona (Tuecany) on his leaving the altar, where he had been celebrating mass, and a stiletto was found on him, which he in valu attempted to throw away. This was the third poists arrested for away. This was the third priest arrested for such an offense at Cortons alone, within a month. The day before, the Tribunal of Bassari (Island of Savatina) condemned a Carmelite friar to a fine of 51f for the same offensa of having "insidious arms" about his person.

CONTINUED TROUBLE WITH THE IAISH PAPAL BRIGADE.—A Paris letter in the Independance Beige affirms that General Lamoriciers continues to have such trouble with his Irish Brigade that he has lately been obliged to send away 100 more of them, and that he had even shot several. A former batch of discharged Irishmen, 120 in number, arrived lately at Marseilles in a state of great misery. The Consul there had no choics in pursuance of his orders but to treat them as strangers, they having forfeited their nationality by taking foreign service, with their eyes open, in spite of all warnings. There was a talk at Marseilles of sending some of them over to Algeria as laborers.

A Parsimonious Marquis.—The wealthy

A Passimosious Marquis.—The wealthy Marquis d'Aligro, of France, who died some time ago, was so parsimosious that, seeing his servant one day with a smart-looking hat, he reprimanded him for his attravagance.
"But I is the old hat you gave me; I had it ironed for a franc."

"Ah" said the Marquis, "but I did not know it could be restored. Here is the franc you paid.—I will take the hat," and he henceforth transferred the renovated beaver to his own head.

A PORTUNATE GOVERSON.—12 is said that John Wood, the present Governor of Illinois, arrived 32 years ago, at the site of the present city of Quincy, in that State, with only 25 conts in his pocket. Now, Quincy contains 20,000 inhabitants, and Mr. Wood lives in, and owns a residence there, which cost him $160,000.

Onlo-Decrease in the Ratio of Fepalation. To the Editors of the Daily Press.

I was interested in your article of Tuesday accounting for the fact that our State will not exhibit so large a ratio of populative increase, from 1850 to 1860, as she did for the decade immediately preceding. In my opinion, you touched upon several of the governing reasons. Only has already become the Germany of the West. She sent more soldiers to Mexico, more emigrants to California, more "pioneers" to Kanasa, Norraska, Iowa and Minnesota, than any Western State, certainly, if not more than any other state, East or West. Ohlo supplies all new-countrydom with leading, editors, politicians and preachers. The second generation of Obiosus are in their prime, and as the "fathers" settled the Reserve, the central woodlands, the valleys of Muskingum, Hocking, Scioto and Mismies, so are the "sons" branching oil to the new territories. Young Buckeyedom is irrepressibly anxious to "do better" than by following or standing in the ing, Scioto and Mismies, so are the "sons" branching oil to the new territories. Young Buckeyedom is irrepressibly anxious to "do better' than by following or standing in the old paths—though, doubtless, many of them "go farther and fare worse." The all-pervading passion for rapidly-goiten wealth possesses the just-risen generation.

The press, however, is directly responsible for depleting our population! Don't resent this, till you hear the simple reason. The press of Cincinnati, from the very facilities it possesses for the rapid collection and dissemination of "news," has done, and is daily doing, more to spread discontent and unrest among the bone and sinew of Ohio, and seducing them to leave the State by regiments, than all other agencies united.

A statement of the fact carries its own proof. Day by day, for years past, the glowing descriptions of agricultural and mineral wealth abounding throughout the trans-Missouri territories with which our newspapers shounded, have whetted the appetites for gain of our young people, and eke of the old also, and they have pulled up stakes and histened off to "Fairy Land and El Dorado." Now, as of old,

"The distance londs eachantment to the view."

"'Tis distance lends enchantment to the view.

Now, as of old,

"Tis distance lends enchantment to the view."

Whoso will consent to take the accounts from Washo, or Pike's Peak, or Dead Man's Gulch, or Arizona, cum grano salls, is at once set down as "an old fogy."

Now, suppose our legislators, our editors, our public men, and all others concerned, would pay due and proper attention to the fair land we, as Ohioans, now possess. The vast forest region of our North-west, from the northern verge of the blue-limestone formation to Michigan and the Great Lake, with its alluvion soil of exhaustless fertility tha iron and coal country of our mid-territory, including some 15,000 square miles of mineral wealth; the corn-producing valleys of our southern creeks and rivers, and the creatal and fructiferous capabilities of every portion of our State; the whole rendered accessible and thrown open to industry and civilization, by railroads, canals and turn-pikes—I say if all these elements were as industriously kept before our people as are the attractive features of some far-off climes and countries, and were the proper attention bestowed upon their true merits, with a view to development, not only would the tide of amigration from Ohio in a measure surcase, but the ends of patriotism, social happiness and individual and aggregate wealth would be subserved. and individual and aggregate wealth would but the ends of patriotism, social happiness and individual and aggregate wealth would be subserved.

You speak of the expensive Government, and high taxes of our Stata, axhausting our populative suargy. Undoubtedly, they are discouraging—but those very taxes were created, in a great degree, to supply the maple with commercial channels, and achines, which they do not remain to use, but heaten to run away from! I fancy, if a colony of industrials, from Germany, France, Italy or England, were suddenly transported from their own country to even the least favored country of Ohio, bringing with them the same conveniences of mere animal comfort that they possess at home, they would find abundant reasons for feliciation, in the kindliness of our climate, the variety and capacity of our soil, the cheapness and excellence of our first schools, the freedom of our people, and even the lightness of our taxes! Yes, a visitor from Onio to any of the European States has occasion to thank God daily that he has lot and part in this great and appart in the server and capacity of the states of our taxes. thank God daily that he has lot and part in this great and happy land, where we are without war (except in the Plekwickian sense, about the negro), without a standing army, "to est out our substance," and have so many solid, common blessings, that we have long since censed to become grateful for or aware of them! Let us not neglect to exalt our great and beautiful State, and look to her as the future seat of empire for ten millions of happy and prosperous freemen.

HORRIELE RESULT OF A KISS—A SANGUINARY SARDINIAN VENDETTA.—Some years ago, in a pretty village in Sardinia, a certain beauty, whose list of lovers included every disengaged male of the township, had three fierce brothers. Now, to salute the lips of a tair lady in public, constitutes an offense which, if not condoned by instant marriage, entails an inevitable "vendetta" upon the families connected. In order, it seemed, to bring matters to a crisis, the most impatient of the suitors availed himself of a village fits to salute his beautiful mistress at the head of a procession. He was not the favored one, for the rustic beauty withdrew, without a word, to her father's house. The friends of the parties, knowing what must onsue, rallied speedily around them. Eight lives were lost in the first encounter, and so terrible and comprehensive was the feud that, after the sacrifice of twenty more lives, the Survivors gradually abandoned the village, leaving its ruins visible as a memorial of the most sanguinary candetta on record. guinary vandetta on record.

ENGLISH OPINION OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN. The London Critic, in the course of a long review of the speeches of Hon. Abraham incoln, the Republican candidate for the Presidency of the American Union, thus refers to his mental powers:

It is from the speeches which Mr. Lincoln has from time to time delivered, in opposition to Mr. Douglas, that we gather some idea of his mental qualifications. We collect from the speeches of Mr. Lincoln, that he has a mind rather of the straight forward than of the suble order, that he rather sizes more mind rather of the straight forward than of the subtle order; that he rather seizes upon great and prominent facts, and argues them to pisin conclusions, than build up elegant but fragile theories upon the treacherous basis of fanciful speculation; that he is carpest more than passionate, and commanding more than persuasive. Indeed every one of his spee hes, which we have read, bears upon the face of it evidence that he is "Honeat Old Abe."

The Banesiv of Phillawthropy.—Carni, a philasthrepist of Bresida, bequesthed a sum of 12,000 francs to the college of that place, the interest of which was to be devoted every year to the purchase of a gold medal of the value of 600 francs, and two silver ones, to be given to those persons who should distinguish themselves most by acts of charity. The gold medal this year was awarded to Angelina Torinelli, a young female of Brescia, who, with the assistance of seven of her companions, organized, furnished and directed a suspital of thirty-four wounded Italian revolutionists. The lady sont the value of the medal in cash to the Garribaldi fund.

The negroes on the island are hired at the rate of $12 per month, to dig and load vessels with gisno, and number 20. The foreman, desiring to make a visit home, made over his office to a man named Snow, first mate of a schooner named the Eastern Star. Snow, being a man of energy and determination, exercised rigid discipline over the negroes. They, not liking this, formed a plan to murder him, and on the 24th of July, as Book was stooping on the ground, one of the negroes, who had been specially chosen or the purpose, buried a tremendous lump of guano at his head, crushing in his skull and leaving him nearly lifeless.

Considerable commotion followed upon this among the whites, and the negro who committed the atroubus deed was immediately strested and placed on the bark Warren, of Baltimore, to be taken to the United States for trial. The arrest created the wildest excitement among the negroes, who rose on mose and took possession of the Island. The white employes, who only numbered twelve, were compelled to submit to the revolt, through fear of the 200 half-savage negroes. The negroes then threatened to sink the Warren and the schooner Emma Tuttle unless their comrade, the nurderer, was given po

The negroes had refused all offers to return to work. They held possession of the island and were doing just as they pleased. Nobody dared to say any thing to them, and they declared they would never yield till their comrade was given up to them by the cantain of
